The Boatman of Montereau.

BY PERCY B. ST. JOHN. Mathieu Boisdoux was born in a town ealled Mon tereau, and got his living as a boatman on the river Seine and Yonne. Sober, industrious and unwearied ir his assiduity for labor, he supported with his handearnings his aged mother and the orphan children of his brother. At an early age he devoted himself specially to save the lives of those in sudden danger. and the sentiments thus awakened in his bosom were, he has since declared, so exquisite that he determined never to lose an opportunity of serving his fellow creatures in the same way. In the course of the following five years he was present on so many occasions at fires, at upsetting of boats, and had saved so many lives, that men ceased to count them, when an accident occurred which raised his reputation to
